Abstract

We present a concise version of the main results of our study from February 24, 2011 on “How Would the Tax Changes Impact Households and Public Budgets.” The study estimates the expected impacts of the government’s current tax reform proposal and of the original proposal of the National Economic Council. This policy brief presents the main long-term impacts of the reforms; for detailed results, short-term impacts, and our methodology see the aforementioned study.
