III

(1) The purpose for which the EI has been established is to carry out scientific research in the field of economics, to contribute to the utilisation of its research results, and to provide the research infrastructure.

(2) The principal activity of the EI is scientific research in the field of economic theories both normative and positive, on the macro- and microeconomic levels. The EI contributes to raising the level of knowledge and education and to utilising the results of scientific research in practice. It acquires, processes, and disseminates scientific information and issues scientific publications (monographs, journals, proceedings, etc.). It provides scientific assessments, professional opinions and recommendations, and consulting and advisory services. In cooperation with universities, the EI carries out doctoral study programmes and provides training for young scientists. The EI organises classroom lectures, academic exercise sessions, and seminars for students. Within the scope of its activity, the EI promotes international cooperation, including the organisation of joint research projects with foreign partners, the participation in exchange programmes for scientists, and the exchange of scientific information, as well as the preparation of joint publications. The EI organises scientific meetings, conferences, and seminars on the national and international levels and provides the infrastructure for research including the provision of accommodation for its employees and guests. It pursues its aims both independently and in cooperation with universities and other research and professional institutions.

(3) The other activity of the EI includes consulting and advisory services and expert studies and expertise in the fields of scientific activities of the Institute. Further activities include courses and training, which includes teaching; renting computer, video and sound equipment; providing software and related activities; providing translation and interpretation services; administrative/organizational services and services in the promotion, marketing and media representation of others. Conditions of the other activity are determined by the relevant business licenses and by the Act on Public Research Institutions. The total extent of the other activity may not exceed 20 percent of the working capacity of the EI.

IV

(1) The Director, the Board, and the Supervisory Board are the bodies of the EI. The Director is the statutory body of the EI and is entitled to act on behalf of the EI.

(2) Basic organisational units of the EI are a scientific section responsible for research and development, an education section responsible for providing educational activities, a library and service departments responsible for providing the infrastructure.

(3) The detailed organisational structure of the EI is regulated by the rules of organisation issued by the Director after being approved by the Board.
